

Welcome to Winterfest!

Happy 2022! And, welcome to tonight's concert. Tonight, we feature three of our choral ensembles – Vocal Ensemble, Family Singers, and Jubilee along with instrumental performances by Wind Ensemble and the North Orchestra. These groups have all been working hard since their last concert which occurred right before the December break. They've been learning new music and continuing to push themselves musically, building both individual ability and dexterity in their ensembles.

We are so thankful for the commitment to music that all the performers bring to the stage tonight and to the North community – each and every day. As we already start to plan for next year, we invite all interested students to come and check out the music department and consider joining an ensemble for next year. There really is a place for everyone. Information on joining an ensemble or auditioning for an upper-level group will be posted in the coming days. With that, it is important to remember that like other studies, music is a learned discipline. Let us help you find your voice and experience all the great opportunities that come from being in a North Music Ensemble.

And so, as always, it is my sincere hope that you enjoy tonight's concert. Listening to music is a great joy. To make music is an even more remarkable experience. To share music with friends...well, that's just about the best.

Sincerely,

Todd R. Young
